Established by the National Cooperative Business Association, the Cooperative Hall of Fame honors those distinguished individuals whose contributions to cooperative business have been genuinely heroic. Inductees are limited to a prestigious group carefully selected to preserve the nature of this special recognition. It is a distinct honor to be inducted into the Cooperative Hall of Fame.

The Cooperative Hall of Fame is housed in the offices of the National Cooperative Business Association in Washington, DC, where a permanent collection of commemorative plaques tells of the contributions made by each inductee. In addition, there is a website — www.heroes.coop — that highlights each inductee and their many contributions to cooperatives.

The Cooperative Development Foundation (CDF) administers the Cooperative Hall of Fame. Nominations are received annually and reviewed by a screening and a selection committee, each composed of current leaders from the various sectors of the U.S. cooperative movement.

The Cooperative Hall of Fame induction ceremony is also a major fundraising event for CDF. It is fitting that the occasion to bestow the highest honor of the cooperative community on those individuals who have selflessly given of their lives to promote cooperatives is also a vehicle to raise funds to perpetuate their work and life-long commitment.

In a 30-year career spanning continents and cooperative sectors, Rosemary Mahoney’s keen business sense has made her a trusted cooperative advisor and innovator of business tools that have strengthened the entire field.

As an agricultural economist at USDA, Mahoney saw the economic potential of cooperatives for farmers and small businesses. Early in her career, she worked on the project that resulted in the formation of Organic Valley, the largest organic food cooperative in the U.S.

With the fall of the iron curtain, Mahoney focused on Eastern Europe. As Chief of Party for Volunteers in Overseas Cooperative Assistance (VOCA), she helped re-introduce the cooperative model in the Czech Republic, Slovakia and Hungary. Mahoney has since consulted with more than 25 start-up cooperatives around the world, including 15 projects in Africa.

In the United States, Mahoney focused on practical, scalable strategies to help support cooperatives. At Cooperative Development Services (CDS), she promoted the use of financial benchmarking tools, an innovation that evolved into CoMetrics.

Mahoney helped establish CDS Consulting Cooperative, which provides technical assistance to food co-ops and was a valued advisor in the reorganization of today’s National Co+op Grocers.

Mahoney is a founder of CooperationWorks!, a national network of cooperative development centers; helped launch Blue Hawk Distributor Cooperative for heating and air conditioning businesses; and worked to establish the .coop domain name.

Businesses continue to value Mahoney’s economics-based approach to co-op development. She remains an advisor at CoMetrics and has served on 13 boards, including as Board Chair of Capital Impact Partners, a national community development financial institution, and CoMetrics.
A real estate agent’s critical assessment of Paul Bradley’s New Hampshire neighborhood put him on a lifetime mission to help owners of mobile homes achieve financial stability and pride of ownership in their communities.

At the New Hampshire Community Loan Fund, where he worked after college on an innovative program to help owners of manufactured homes buy their communities, Bradley quickly recognized that cooperative ownership can provide financial security rarely available to owners of mobile homes.

During his 18-year tenure at the Community Loan Fund, Bradley expanded the co-op development program and added home financing and new development. As a result, 12 cooperative communities grew to 80 and now to more than 120.

In 2008, Bradley turned his experience in resident-owned community (ROC) development into a market-based non-profit social venture: ROC USA, LLC with LLC Member investors Prosperity Now, Capital Impact Partners and the Community Loan Fund. Implementing a business model he developed through a NeighborWorks® America program at the Kennedy School at Harvard University, Bradley began scaling co-op ownership nationally. ROC USA now supports 220 co-ops and 14,000 homeowner/members in 15 states through a network of nine affiliated nonprofits and a national CDFI called ROC USA Capital.
Throughout his 38-year career advancing the credit union movement, Rudolf B. Hanley (Rudy) has been credited with teaching teammembers and colleagues what Member Service truly means. Guided by the cooperative principles and his service focus, Rudy helped SchoolsFirst Federal Credit Union grow to the fifth-largest credit union in the nation and the largest serving the education community, with more than 600,000 Members as of June 2014.

This overarching commitment to service inspired countless initiatives to help Members achieve a better financial life, including practical education programs and multiple products tailored to school employees, including a savings program for those on a 10- or 11-month pay schedule and zero percent interest uniform and classroom supplies loans.

Rudy, who served on more than 40 boards in his career, was a revered mentor for his ability to draw out and develop leadership qualities in others. He also understood the power of a collective voice in Washington, D.C. and Sacramento, helping pass legislation that secured people’s right to choose their financial institutions and ensuring Congress did not tax credit unions.

His contagious passion for the movement and community outreach inspired those around him to embrace the cooperative spirit. He successfully rallied colleagues to help fund the PBS financial literacy program Biz Kid$, establish Comunidad Latina Federal Credit Union, and donate millions to charitable organizations.

Rudy’s legacy is proof that a warm, caring and friendly approach has the ability to keep people inspired, connected and empowered.
Marilyn Scholl has played a prominent leadership role in nearly every major development in the U.S. food co-op sector since she took her first co-op job at Gordon Park Cooperative in Milwaukee in 1978.

Working at the University of Wisconsin Center for Cooperatives, Scholl organized education programs and conferences for co-ops. Focusing on the challenges of business sustainability, membership care and strategic planning, Scholl helped create the Cooperative Management Institute.

She later led a food co-op consulting team that became CDS Consulting Co-op, a group of 38 people dedicated to helping co-ops reach their full potential. Seeing the need for systematic governance at food co-ops, Scholl and her CDS CC colleagues developed the Cooperative Board Leadership Development program to provide ongoing support for effective governance and built the 4 Pillars of Cooperative Governance model.

With the help of National Cooperative Bank and the National Co-op Grocers, Scholl’s team created a small grants program for start-ups that became Food Co-op Initiative, a nonprofit supporting the opening of more than 130 new food co-ops. She was one of the creators of the food co-op development model 4 Cornerstones in 3 Stages.

In 2004, Scholl led the project team that developed the reorganization plan for the National Cooperative Grocers Association. Today National Co+op Grocers represents 147 co-ops operating more than 200 stores in 37 states.

Recently retired as manager of CDS Consulting Cooperative, Scholl continues to be a member and consultant at CDS CC; she serves on the boards of Cooperative Fund of New England and Food Co-op Initiative as well.
The Cooperative Development Foundation thanks the following sponsors for helping to make tonight’s celebration possible.
National Co+op Grocers

National Co+op Grocers (NCG) celebrates the achievements of all four 2018 Cooperative Hall of Fame inductees and in particular wishes to congratulate two of our food co-op heroes, Marilyn Scholl and Rosemary Mahoney. These outstanding women have been incredibly influential in the growth, development and success of NCG and the food co-ops we serve. Their work has helped make healthy food, good jobs and ecologically friendly household goods accessible to more members of more communities across the United States. This well-deserved honor recognizes the enduring impact they both have had on food co-ops and our entire cooperative sector.

Thank you to Ro and Marilyn for your service and friendship throughout the years. Your vision, leadership and dedication to the power and resiliency of the cooperative business model inspires us and will inspire many generations of cooperators to come!
National Cooperative Bank

National Cooperative Bank (NCB) provides comprehensive banking products and services to cooperatives, their members and other socially responsible organizations throughout the country. What makes NCB unique is that the bank was created to address the financial needs of an underserved market niche – people who join together cooperatively to meet personal, social or business needs, especially in low-income communities.

NCB has an uncommon mandate to ensure our efforts benefit those most in need, supporting low income communities and cooperative expansion initiatives. Customers that choose NCB create impact in the areas they care about – affordable housing, access to healthy food, small business, community health care and renewable energy.

We are honored to be the sponsor for CDF’s Cooperative Hall of Fame. Congratulations to Paul, Rosemary, Marilyn and Rudy for your dedication and commitment to the cooperative sector that will forever have an impact on our world.
National Rural Electric Cooperative Association

The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association is the national trade association representing more than 900 local electric cooperatives. From booming suburbs to remote farming communities, electric co-ops serve as engines of economic development across 56 percent of the nation’s landscape and serve 42 million Americans.

As local businesses built by the consumers they serve, electric cooperatives have meaningful ties to America’s rural communities. They invest $12 billion annually into the areas that they serve and are making energy and broadband investments to give communities the flexibility to adapt to tomorrow’s energy and technology needs. Electric co-ops have launched community microgrids, lead the nation in the deployment of community solar facilities, and are partners in a new XPRIZE carbon capture research project.
National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation
CFC proudly salutes Paul Bradley, Rudy Hanley, Rosemary Mahoney and Marilyn Scholl on their induction into the Cooperative Hall of Fame. Created and owned by America’s electric cooperative network, CFC, a nonprofit finance cooperative with approximately $26 billion in assets, provides capital and industry-leading financial products to serve the needs of our member-owners — America’s 900-plus not-for-profit, consumer-controlled electric cooperatives.

CFC operates under the seven cooperative principles and our core values of Service, Integrity and Excellence. By delivering unparalleled industry expertise, flexibility and responsiveness, we help our members maintain a sophisticated system of generation, transmission and distribution resources that spans 75 percent of the United States. This infrastructure provides a safe, reliable and affordable flow of power to 42 million consumers each day and plays a critical role in boosting the nation’s economy and rural quality of life.
Nationwide

It is with great pride that Nationwide sponsors the 2018 Cooperative Hall of Fame and extends heartfelt congratulations to each inductee. Since 1926, Nationwide has been a strong supporter of farmers, ranchers and the cooperative community. These humble beginnings with rural Ohio farmers and cooperatives contributed to Nationwide’s growth from a small mutual automobile insurer to one of the largest insurance and financial service companies. Over the last 90 years, the company’s products and services have expanded dramatically to meet the many sides of our members. Still led by farmers, Nationwide remains committed to its agricultural heritage which includes partnerships with large agricultural cooperatives. Nationwide is proudly a mutual company, owned by its member-policyholders, and therefore operated for their benefit.
SchoolsFirst Federal Credit Union

SchoolsFirst Federal Credit Union is incredibly honored to commemorate the 2018 inductees for their contributions to the cooperative movement. It's because of great leaders like them that we are able to find new, impactful ways to weave the cooperative principles into everything we do — inspiring all of us to improve Members’ lives worldwide. Today, we celebrate someone we hold very near to our heart, Rudy Hanley, our former President/CEO, and honor his many professional accomplishments.

SchoolsFirst FCU has been empowering school employees and their families to achieve the financial security they deserve since 1934. Our focus on providing World-Class Personal Service is inspired by the care and compassion our Members in education exhibit each day as they help build the future for our communities.

The Cooperative Hall of Fame has truly gained another group of deserving leaders. Congratulations and thank you to all the inductees.

Rudy’s visionary leadership affected thousands over the years who now help make the world a better place. As attorneys we experienced Rudy asking not only “what can be legally done?” but also the question of “what is fair and right?” Rudy’s excellent leadership is truly legendary even if Rudy’s humility prevents him from seeing the positive and substantial impact he has made.
